27th–29th October 2011

at Shanghai, China

Venue: Shanghai Institute of Organic Chemistry, Chinese Academy of Sciences

Welcome Address

On behalf of the Local Organizing Committee, I cordially invite you to attend the 3rd ACGG conference, which will be held in Shanghai from Oct. 27th (Thursday) to 29th (Saturday), 2011.

The 3rd ACGG conference will follow the spirit and style of the preceding conferences in Tsukuba and Taipei. The cost is low, the tongue is loose, and the scientific and personal communications are intense. The attendees have diverse scientific backgrounds, including organic chemistry, analytical chemistry and physics, biochemistry, bioinformatics, enzymology, immunology, microbiology, and cell biology, but are all cross-linked by carbohydrates. The attendees' culture backgrounds are diverse as well, but are all rooted closely in Asia. Such a mix shall explode with new ideas about carbohydrates, the indispensable component of life, new opportunities for cooperation, and new views about the future of Asia.

So, let us meet in Shanghai in the 3rd ACGG conference!
